

JAPAN & NEW ZEALAND NATIONAL INNOVATION SYSTEMS COMPARED

The following schematics demonstrate the philosophically different approaches to the respective national innovation systems in Japan and New Zealand. Note that the Japanese model has environment, culture, tradition and national character as the foundation while the New Zealand model is devoid of any overt reference to these same factors except as they may be expressed in “skills”, “capability” etc.

